Invitation

Greetings from "Garden city" of India,

Bangalore, the garden city of India, famous once as pensioner's paradise and as the hub of heavy electrical industries, is rapidly emerging as the leader in computer technology, biomedical technology, and scientific research. With its innumerable hospitals, it will soon become the leader in hospital industry (medical tourism). To keep pace with this, we are organizing the conference "International Clinical Neurophysiology Update." The conference is being held at convention center, NIMHANS, Bangalore, from 6-8th April, 2007.

Because of its beautiful weather, location, and many surrounding historical sites, Bangalore is the favored destination for tourists. It is well connected to different parts of the country and the world.

The organizing committee has chalked out an exciting academic program comprising of didactic lectures and workshops by nationally and internationally acclaimed faculty. It aims to provide both basic and advanced understanding in clinical neurophysiology - nerve conduction studies, needle EMG, magnetic stimulation of brain and spinal cord etc. About 150-200 neurologists, clinical neurophysiologists, and others with an interest in clinical neurophysiology are expected to attend the meeting.

I look forward to you for generous support to our conference and for making it a memorable experience for a long time to come.

Sincerely,

Dr. M. Veerendrakumar
Organizing Secretary
